He reaches the conclusion that | we can't tell how many others, tried to be but for the operation of the unit rule TILDEN could not have been nominated, and that THURMAN would have been the fortunate individual upon whom the choice of the Convention would have fallen. Considering that THURMAN was never formally nominated in the Convention at all, and that he manifested no strength whatever in the body, this correspondent's conclusion is Democratic National Convention. Every rather remarkable. We give his own words: preparation was made, too, at their own cost.

"Yet, withal, unless for the operation of the unit rule, Tilden would have failed of a majority at the critical moment, and thereby in all human probability have lost his opportunity. Tilden's majority was but thirty-By the force of the unit rule he received seventeen votes from New York, eleven from Kentucky, and five from Virginia which were opposed to him, and which made up his whole majority of thirty-three. But in addition to this he received not less than twenty votes from other quarters which were opposed to him through the TILDEN'S vote was 534, so his majority was 42 more than the two-thirds rule required. The Virginia delegation did not cast a solid vote for him under the operation of the unit rule. On the contrary, each delegate voted for the man of his choice when the roll was called; and it was with the consent of the delegates that Virginia changed her vote so as to cast 21 for TH.DEN. The vote of Virginia, however, was in fact never counted as a unit for TILDEN. The four anti-TILDEN votes, which the delegates had authorized to be cast for TILDEN, were counted for and announced for BAY-ARD. So that TILDEN had 46 votes more than a two-thirds majority.

The unit rule of course operated more against than for TILDEN, he being the strongest candidate. New Jersey asked the privi-

In fact the whole story is mere speculation. We do not doubt that as plausible a programme could be now made out for any other candidate as for THURMAN. The fact is as it is. Explanations are useless. They indicate nothing but that those who indulge in them are disappointed. It is unjust to our nominee to assume that the unit rule worked altogether in his favor. It operated amidst roaring shouts of laughter. both for and against him. But he was the people's choice, and the Convention merely there was a unit rule amongst the voters, working out his election. Virginia at St. Louis. Certainly the Virginians who were at St. old Commonwealth received, whether in or out of the Convention. In fact, a Virginian was so constantly surrounded by Virginians residing in Missouri that he could not but feel at home. Before the delegation had riages were driven up to the door of the La Clede Hotel, where they stayed, and not only owner desired to keep open. Perhaps the those of the delegates who chose to go, but a number of other Virginians, 'were driven out to get a sight of some of the fine streets, and finally to Forest Park, several miles away from the city. This park contains some 1,300 acres, we think; but perhaps our in America. Mr. Shaw, now some eighty years of age, who has given a magnificent park to St. Louis, received the delegation with genuine courtesy and dignity, opened his wine cellar, manifested a most liberal hospitality, and in his great politeness re- Tilden belonged. Whilst on this excursion the Sun the desired information : party made the acquaintance of Manton MARBLE, of New York, and HENRY WAT-TERSON, of Louisville, TILDEN'S right and left bowers at St. Louis. MARBLE would pass here as one of those whom we used to call silver-grays, though the color of his hair is rather iron-gray than silver-gray. He formance of his official duties that divine is a bright-eyed, handsome, young-looking man, not at all such a one as we had expected to find him, except that he wore spectacles, as we had always thought he ought to. WATTERSON is a man of brains, but not of much personal pulchritude-a one-eyed genius.

But we have lost ourselves. The excursionists returned to their hotel, and of course found that all the bills for hack-hire, &c., had been settled by the sons of the Old Dominion, who in the far West had never ceased to love their mother State. Colonel NAT. CLAIBORNE, universally known in Missouri as in Virginia, and Dr. Dudley, the coroner of the city of St. Louis, also a Virgintan, chaperoned the Virginians on this excursion.

At the entrance to Snaw's garden (it is not a beer garden, but a garden filled with the rarest of trees, shrubs, vines, flowers, &c., &c.,) we witnessed an act of delicate politeness worth mentioning. Being without tickets, the delegation would have had to stand at the gate until Mr. Shaw's order for their admission had been received; but this stranger imme-

St. Louis.

A magnificent city is St. Louis. It is cos mopolitan-great-hearted and liberal-handed. Nothing that could be thought of was omitted to be done by the people of that city in preparing for the assembling of the Mayor-elect of Richmond.

St. Louis has the finest bridge in the country. Its very appearance forces upon the traveller the conviction of its safety; that has ever been made in the United and he feels as secure whilst crossing it in a railroad car as if he were travelling on level ground. Its strength is visible. If a car were to fly the track it couldn't get off Public Accounts. the bridge. So at least it seemed to as. The streets are badly paved. We wish to see no wooden pavements in Richmond. Those in St. Louis are discreditable to the city. Full of holes, rough, and without crossings, the streets present a marked contrast to almost everything else in that glorious city beyond the Mississippi which twenty years hence will be far, far ahead of all its western rivals, and almost if not quite equal to New York.

St. Louis has spacious parks. She thus has capacious lungs. She has many beautiful residences, and some of the largest and finest business-houses we ever saw. The hall in which the Convention sat will seat five thousand people-as many as four of our largest churches wo ld seat. It was impossible for any man not a STENTOR to make himself heard all over it.

Men's ideas of female beauty are probably dependent upon their localities. At any rate, the Virginians could not be made to acknowledge that the ladies of St. Louis are lege of easting six votes for him, but was half as pretty as those of Virginia. The refused. If the stranger was about to miss it they managed to shoulder him into it,

They had a grand ratification meeting in St. Louis on Thursday night. The rain it ratified the people's will. Let him be rain-ed everywhere, but the crowds filled chosen by a majority of the popular vote the streets nevertheless. Cannon were that will cause the plunderers to think that lired, fire-works set off, speeches made rockets sent up from the dome of the courthouse, and a general scene of joy and gladsymbol of strength amongst the people, and ness was witnessed. The local influence in to quote Senator Kernan's words carries favor of Tilden had been strong, and his nomination gave great satisfaction to the people of the city.

It was a common saying amongst the Vir ginians-made in a jocular way, yet pointing to a fact-that the St. Louisans were Louis cannot complain of the treatment the glorious fellows, but didn't know when Sunday came. SENTIMENT IN RICHMOND IN REGARD TO THE NOMINATION OF TILDEN AND HEN-DRICKS.-The Richmond correspondent of the New York Herald reports that in answer to the question "What is your opinion as to the St. Louis nominations?" he got the following replies from people in

"It's a good ticket. I wanted Hancock, the man that I had known in the army for ten years, but failing to get him I am now heart and soul for Tilden and Hendricks." Harry Heth, ex-Confederate General (Democrat). "A fair ticket, though a better might have been made. It is good, and if necessary I will vacate the mayoralty and go to work anywhere for it with all the backbone I've t."- William C. Carrington (Dem.) "A most powerful ticket. Both the nominees, as contrasted with the Republican nominees, are their superiors in statesmanship, and in everything that goes to make men great. It will be the hottest canvass States."-A. M. Keiley (Dem.), Mayor of Richmond. "It is the strongest ticket that could be put out."-W. F. Taylor (Dem.), Auditor "A ticket that will be stronger than that of Tyler too and Tippecanoe."-J. Bell Bigger (Dem.), Clerk of Virginia House of Delegates.

"The best ticket the Democrats could have nominated."-J. Ambler Smith, ex-Republican Member of Congress. The ticket meets every requirement of the occasion, and should be elected if there is centennial patriotism left in the American people."-R. M. T. Hunter (Dem.), State Treasurer.

"I like it first-rate. It's bound to win."-W. H. Ruffner (Dem.), Superintendent of Public Instruction. "The best they could have nominated, to save their lives. If we can't win with them we can't win at all."-Rev. J. J. Lafferty. editor Christian Advocate. "I shall go for Uncle Sammy with all the vim that's in me." - George W. Bagby (Dem.), State Librarian, "A very strong ticket."-J. L. Kemper (Dem.), Governor of Virginia.

"I was for Hancock, but as Tilden has shown up to be the strongest man, in fact stronger than all of the others combined. I am now for Tilden and Hendricks."-J. McDonald (Democrat), Secretary of State. "It's the biggest thing out."-R. F. Wallcer (Democral), Superintendent of Public

"It will bring out the full strength of the (Republican). "Hayes and Wheeler will beat it easily.

Won't they?"-Lizzie Van Lew (Republi can), Postmaster, Richmond. "Tilden, Hendricks, and Reform is the slogan from St. Louis. The country has caught the cry, and it is echoing through the land like the voice of victory in advance." Major Baker P. Lee (Democrat). "It is easier beat than any other ticket that could have been named."-S. L. Anable (Republican), Pension Agent for Vir-"I think we can beat it, but it is the best ticket they could have nominated."-Williams C. Wickham (Republican), Receiver Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad. "The strongest sort of a ticket, though I would have preferred Thurman as the Vice-President, because I think he would have more distinctly represented the platform than Hendricks. I'm in for the ticket.'

Judge Robert Ould (Democrat). "I like it."-Samuel Boylein (Democrat), Superintendent Public Buildings. "The very best that could be raked up, and, what's more, I think it's going to be elected."-A. P. Bennett (Democrat), Richmond Whig. I could give the opinions of many more, but these are sufficiently expressive of the sentiment of both parties in regard to the St. Louis nominations. If there is anything to be added, it is that there never has been such confidence in the success of a ticket manifested as the Democrats have to-day in Tilden and Hendricks. The same can hardly be said of the Republicans here in regard to Hayes and Wheeler.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Times offers this as a straw for the Centennial campaign:

1876. 1860. TILD | EN HAM | LIN HEN DRICKS. LIN | COLN.

Governor Tilden's speech has gained him friends and made enthusiasm for him in his own party. The Democratic journals are delighted with his evident determination to lead the fight in person, and to make it as hot as possible for the enemy .- Tribune. A New York Herald reporter interviewed

Sunset Cox a few days ago. Cox is "all right" for the ticket, but rather sore about being ousted from the place of Speaker pro tem. of the House. It is reported that some Ohio congressmen have advised Governor Hayes by telegraph to be careful neither to commend nor censure President Grant's Administration in his letter of acceptance.
